The same year Nebraska became a state, Ammi, Elijah & Emma Filley took up the first upland homestead in Gage County, calling it Cottage Hill Farm. It was after a devastating drought and grasshopper invasion that Elijah hired area farmers to help build his barn. This single act, among others, made it possible for settlers to stay in Gage County until a new crop could be harvested. Today this barn stands as a tribute to the men and women who withstood the hardships of those early years in Nebraska. The barn is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.
